

I am writing to highly recommend Brian Poole as a software developer with a strong leaning towards front-end development. During his time at our organization, Brian consistently demonstrated exceptional skills and professionalism in his role as a software developer contracted from BravoTech.

Brian joined our team in April 2024 and quickly became an invaluable asset. He exhibited a strong work ethic, a strong willingness to learn, and a keen attention to detail. Brian was hired as a front-end UI developer, but quickly delved into middle-tier development as the necessity arose. He picked up concepts quickly, such as incorporating automated unit testing into his development practices.

Brian's most notable qualities are his excellent teamwork and communication skills. His positive attitude and willingness to go the extra mile made him a pleasure to work with. Brian always met his deadlines, even under pressure.

I am confident that Brian will bring the same level of dedication and expertise to his future projects, and I believe he will be a valuable addition to any team.
